

Computer Science for Economics

Description of the MSc. program

The MSc. in Computer Science for Economics is included in the field of Cybernetics, Statistics, and Computer Science for Economics, specialization: Computer Science for Economics, which is exempt from income tax according to the Order of the Ministry No. 539/225/1479/2013.

The mission of this MSc. is to train specialists in the field of Computer Science for Economics who are able to meet the current and future demands of the economic and social environment, of the modern management, of the highly dynamic information and communications technologies in a modern and efficient manner according to the European and international education and research standards and to the national and community-specific classification of activities. The program is suitable for people who want to deepen their knowledge from the Bachelor's program, considering that there is an interdisciplinary approach.

The competitive edge of this program is that it is useful for both young graduate students in the field of Computer Science and for graduate students in the field of Economics, who are willing to find and use the useful tools in order to develop an enterprise, to manage the activities of a company.

Possible jobs (according to the Romanian Occupational Classification) for the graduate students of "Computer Science for Economics" MSc. are:

- Program Manager;
- Computer Center Manager;
- Computer Office Manager;
- Computer Store Manager;
- Computer Laboratory Manager;
- Computer Division Manager;
- Computer Department Manager;
- I.T.C. Manager;
- Small Computer Enterprise Director;
- Computer Systems Architect;
- Analyst; Programmer;
- Computer Systems Programmer;
- Computer Systems Manager;
- E-Business Specialist;
- Computer Architecture Specialist;
- Computer-Specific Security Procedures and Tools Manager;
- Computer Science Consultant;
- Database Manager;
- Computer Network Manager.